

Two Critically Important Parenting & Co-Parenting Courses for ALL Divorcing/Divorced Parents

Ria Severance, LMFT

Therapists with a divorce specialty and many family law attorneys as well as Minors Counsel require divorcing clients who are parents to take the following two courses. Both provide certificates of completion, and save you considerable amounts of money whenever there are any differences between co-parents related to Parenting strategies, Co-Parenting and/or Negotiating a Parenting Plan (custody).

Most importantly, you increase the likelihood of buffering your children more effectively from the stress and trauma that a high-conflict divorce/custody experience typically is for all family members, and especially for children.

For co-parenting work, litigation, mediation and collaborative divorce work, you save money by knowing better what's expected of you, and what kinds of skills-building to expect from any related therapist, collaborative divorce coach or clinical mediator of your Parenting Plan.

For litigated divorces, at the very least, it "looks good" in court as you have "voluntarily" taken these self-paced, reputable, online parenting and co-parenting courses. Both provide certificates of completion.

For therapists working only with the child(ren) of divorce, parents have 2 months from the time a child begins therapy to complete these courses or, barring a serious crisis, therapy may be interrupted until the parents invest in completing these courses. We frankly leverage our influence in an effort to buffer children from the significant physical and mental health consequences of toxic levels of stress, when co-parents interact ineffectively.

Further, if you are engaging co-parenting work, these courses cover the basics so that you are not paying your therapist top dollar for basic information, and you come to the work with greater clarity about what's expected/needed for your kids' wellbeing.

1. $99 for Online, self-paced webinar on Parenting – 10 classes – Research-based and trauma-focused: In both English & Spanish: <https://echotraining.talentlms.com/catalog>

2. $169 for Online, self-paced webinar on Co-parenting Course designed by Bill Eddy (a Family Law Attorney as well as a licensed clinician with an LCSW) – a hot shot in the high-conflict divorce arena – 16 Co-Parenting classes – Research-informed.
<https://www.onlineparentingprograms.com/online-classes/parenting-without-conflict-class.html>

Thank you for investing in your child(ren)'s wellbeing during this life crisis (divorce) in these critically important ways!